Contributors

Deniz Kocak holds an MA in political science and modern history. He has studied at the Humboldt-University Berlin, University of Potsdam, and Chulalongkorn University, Bangkok. His research interests include civil-military relations, state formation, as well as French and British colonial history in Southeast Asia.

Jesse Earle Odum holds a BA in Asian Studies from American Military University and MA in Southeast Asian Studies from Chulalongkorn University, Bangkok. His thesis research focused on changing drug trafficking trends in the Golden Triangle region of Southeast Asia and the threat to the United States of America.

Nguyen Quang Dung was born in Hoi An City, Vietnam in 1984. He obtained his BA in Oriental Studies from Vietnam National University in Ho Chi Minh City, and worked there a research assistant at the Center for Vietnamese-Southeast Asian Studies. In 2007, he won a scholarship from the Rockefeller Foundation to study in the MA program of Southeast Asian Studies at Chulalongkorn University, Thailand. His research interests are ethnic identity, education for the hill tribes in Thailand, and ethnic language loss. He is now working as a lecturer in the Department of Anthropology, National University of Vietnam.

Supang Chantavanich is a chair Professor in Sociology at Chulalongkorn University. She holds a BA in English and Philosophy from Chulalongkorn University and MA and doctorate in Sociology from the University of Grenoble, France. Her research has focused on overseas Chinese, migrants, and refugees in Thailand. She also works as the director of the Asian Research Center for Migration at the Institute of Asian Studies, Chulalongkorn University.
Theara Thun is an MA candidate in Southeast Asian studies at Chulalongkorn University. He has a BA in History from the Royal University, Phnom Penh, Cambodia, and worked there as an assistant lecturer in 2008–9. He has also been a scholar at the Center for Khmer Studies. His research interests include the modern history of mainland Southeast Asia and international relations between Cambodia and Thailand.