Contributors

Follow this and additional works at: https://digital.car.chula.ac.th/arv

Part of the Asian Studies Commons

Recommended Citation

This Others is brought to you for free and open access by the Chulalongkorn Journal Online (CUJO) at Chula Digital Collections. It has been accepted for inclusion in Asian Review by an authorized editor of Chula Digital Collections. For more information, please contact ChulaDC@car.chula.ac.th.
Contributors

Carl Middleton is a lecturer on the Master of Arts in International Development Studies Programme in the Faculty of Political Science of Chulalongkorn University. His research focuses on environmental policy and politics, with a particular interest in political ecology and water and energy governance.

Kasira Cheeppensook is a lecturer in International Relations at the Faculty of Political Science, Chulalongkorn University. She is currently completing her PhD in International Relations at the London School of Economics and Political Science. Her interests include ASEAN, Southeast Asia, and the development and internalization of international norms.

My Lo received her Bachelor's degree from the University of Minnesota, USA. She then worked as an international capacity building project coordinator at the Center for Victims of Torture. She continued her studies at the MA in International Development Studies Program (MAIDS), Faculty of Political Science, Chulalongkorn University, and graduated in 2010. She is currently working with The McKnight Foundation, a Minnesota-based family foundation.

Naruemon Thabchumpon is a lecturer of the Department of Government in the Faculty of Political Science and director of the International Development Studies Program (MAIDS) at Chulalongkorn University. She received her PhD from the University of Leeds, United Kingdom. Her academic interests focus on the issues of participatory democracy, politics of human rights and the role of civil society organizations in development and democratization. Her current research focuses on Thai investment in the greater Mekong sub-region countries and its impact on democratic space.

Supamit Pitipat is assistant professor and head of the department of International Relations, Faculty of Political Science, Chulalongkorn
Surat Horachaikul is assistant professor in the Department of International Relations, Faculty of Political Science, and Director of the Indian Studies Center of Chulalongkorn University. He has master degrees from the London School of Economics and from London Guildhall University. He specializes in Indian politics and political economy.

Teewin Suputtikun received his Bachelor’s degree in International Relations from the Faculty of Political Science, Chulalongkorn University. He continued his education in Japan, majoring in International Relations and Japanese Studies. After receiving his master’s degree from Hitotsubashi University and doctoral degree from Waseda University, he now works as a lecturer in Chulalongkorn University. His academic interests revolve around IR theories, Japan’s foreign policy, Japanese studies, and contemporary issues in East Asia.

Vira Somboon is associate professor at the Department of International Relations, Faculty of Political Science, Chulalongkorn University, and head of the research sub-cluster on “International Cooperation and Human Security” supported by the Higher Education Research Promotion and National Research University Project of Thailand, Office of the Higher Education Commission. He received his BA in Political Science from Thammasat University, and an MA in Asian Studies and PhD in Political Science from the University of Michigan.

Vorasakdi Mahatdhanobol graduated from the Department of International Relations, Faculty of Political Science, Ramkhamhaeng University, and worked as a researcher at the Institute of Asian Studies of Chulalongkorn University from the late 1980s to 2001. In 2001, he became a lecturer in the Department of International Relations, Faculty of Political Science, Chulalongkorn University. His research mostly focuses on China. His recent Thai publications include Chinese Political Economy (2006), Governing China: Party, Elites, State Power (2011) and Buddha Gautama: A Political Science Analysis (2012).