Contributors

Chomnard Setisarn is Professor of Japanese folklore and Deputy Dean for Planning and Development Affairs, Faculty of Arts, Chulalongkorn University. She received her Ph.D. from University of Tsukuba, Japan in 1999. Her research interests are in the area of comparative folklore, Japanese culture, Japanese language education and human-animal relationship with a focus on human-chicken multi relationships.

Chantal Herberholz is a lecturer at the Faculty of Economics, Chulalongkorn University, executive committee member of the Centre for Health Economics, vice chairperson of the Bachelor of Arts Program in Economics and director of the international affairs office of the Faculty of Economics. Dr. Herberholz' research interests include trade in services (education, health and financial services), health care financing and household decision making.

Montakarn Chimmamee is a PhD. Candidate in Demography, College of Population Studies, Chulalongkorn University. She received her Master's Degree in Human and Social Development from the Graduate School, Chulalongkorn University in 2005. Her research interests include international migration and human development in ASEAN.

Pataporn Sukontamarn is a lecturer at the College of Population Studies, Chulalongkorn University. Her research interests are in the areas of development economics and population studies, including economics of education, human capital, women's empowerment, and aging society.

Patcharawalai Wongboonsin is Professor of Demography, and Director of Human Development and Migration Studies Center, College of Population Studies, Chulalongkorn University. She received her Ph.D. from Kyushu University, Japan. She has authored a number of book chapters on inter- and intra-ASEAN migration published by Palgrave Macmillan, Ashgate Publishing, Brill, and UNESCAP. She is also a member of the East Asian Academic Cooperation Council, ASEM-LLL Hub, and Network of East Asian Think Tanks.

Saikaew Thipakorn is a researcher at the Institute of Asian Studies, Chulalongkorn University. She has an MPA in Public Administration from the University of Missouri-Columbia, and a Ph.D in Thai Studies from Chulalongkorn University.

Gabriela Steinemann holds an MA in Southeast Asian Studies from Chulalongkorn University. She previously obtained a Master’s degree in International Relations from the Graduate Institute of International Studies in Geneva, Switzerland in 2005. Her research interests include human security and conflict issues with a focus on Southeast Asia. Gabriela currently works for UNHCR in Kachin State, Myanmar. This article reflects her personal opinion.

Theera Nuchpiam has an MA in Politics and Ph.D in international relations from the University of Lancaster, UK. His research has focused on Vietnam and Laos.

Udomporn Teeraviriyakul is a lecturer in the Southeast Asia Studies Program at the Department of History, Faculty of Social Sciences of Naresuan University, Phitsanulok. She received her PhD from Chulalongkorn University in the Thai Studies Program. Her interests include Southeast Asia and Thai Studies with a particular interest in socio-economic development and colonial history. Her study focuses on nationalist movements and modernization under colonialism.

Vipan Prachuabmoh is a lecturer at the College of Population Studies, Chulalongkorn University. She received her Ph.D. in Sociology from University of Chicago, USA in 1991. Her research interests lie in the fields of fertility, population and development and aging. In 2009, she and her research team on the project on Setting-Up the System for Monitoring and Evaluation of the Second National Plan for Older Persons (2002-2021), received the National Research Council of Thailand Award for the best research in Sociology.