Contributors

Follow this and additional works at: https://digital.car.chula.ac.th/arv

Part of the Asian Studies Commons

Recommended Citation
Available at: https://digital.car.chula.ac.th/arv/vol28/iss2/7
Contributors

Lia Genovese holds a PhD from SOAS, University of London for a dissertation titled “The Plain of Jars of North Laos - Beyond Madeleine Colani.” In 2006 she graduated from SOAS with a master’s degree (with distinction) in the History of Art and Archaeology. She regularly lectures at Thammasat and Silpakorn Universities (Bangkok) and is a member of the lecture committee at the Siam Society. Her current research interests include: the Plain of Jars of Laos; colonial archaeology; the megaliths of South and Southeast Asia; Iron Age mortuary practices; Madeleine Colani; and cultural heritage.

Cynthia Maung is the director and founder of Mae Tao Clinic, a 200-bed, community managed primary health care facility, based in Mae Sot, Thailand.

Nguyen Van Chinh is Associate Professor of Social Anthropology and Deputy Director, Center for Asia Pacific Studies, Vietnam National University in Hanoi. His academic interests focus on the issues of labor, migration, and cross-border mobility in the Mekong Region.

Punpipit Pipitpun has an MA in Politics and Administration from Chiang Mai University and is currently a lecturer in the Faculty of Political Science at Prince of Songkhla University, Pattani Campus. His research focuses on Islamic culture, insurgency, and local government.

Shekh Mohammad Altafur Rahman is a human rights lawyer and lecturer at Thammasat University, Thailand. Born in Bangladesh, he began his professional career in community service. Since 1999 he has been working on human rights and development in association with the Ford Foundation, Odhikar, Care Society, Action Aid, Forum Asia, Human Security Alliance, NDI, CIDA and ANFREL, and has established a regional platform named Human Security Alliance in 2006 in Thailand. His area of expertise comprises human rights, democratization, conflict transformation, emergency management, human security, and governance. He has taught and conducted research in various universities in Thailand, Bangladesh, Korea and Japan.

Tara Russell, MSc HPPF, is an independent health system consultant who provides technical advice to the Mae Tao Clinic and its partners.

Angunthip Srisuwan is assistant professor at Faculty of Architecture, Chiang Mai University. She obtained her PhD at Università Politecnica Delle Marche, Italy. Her research interests are in the areas of urban development, urban environment and urban planning. She has published several papers on community and participation, comparative urban development, and sustainable cities.

Chokchai Suttawet obtained his Ph.D. in Industrial Sociology (Labour and Organization) from Bielefeld University, Germany in 1994. He is presently a lecturer of both doctoral and master’s degree programs in Public Administration and Public Policy and Management, Mahidol University, and serves as a chairperson of the master’s degree program. He has served as an advisor at private and public universities, and labor, social welfare and legal related organizations, and as a committee member of several foundations. His research interests include industrial relations, social democracy, cooperatives, development administration, human rights, religion and philosophical issue.

Pham Dang Nhat Thai is a lecture at the Faculty of Architecture, Hue University of Sciences. He holds a bachelor’s degree at Hanoi Architecture University and received his master’s in architecture from Chiang Mai University in 2015. His research focuses on the local architecture of Hue, especially traditional houses, temples and community buildings.

Pratumtip Thongcharoen received her doctoral degree in Public Administration (Public Policy and Public Management) from Faculty of Social Sciences and Humanities, Mahidol University, Thailand in 2014. She is currently a lecturer at the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences, Surat Thani Rajabhat University. She has more than ten years of experience in teaching and researching in higher education in Thailand. Her research interests include Public Policy and Management, University Community Engagement, Disasters, Project Evaluation, and Education.